

DANIEL CHRISTMAN

Senior Vice President for International Affairs at the U.S. Chamber of Commerce

SPEECH TOPICS

A Tour of the World: Economic Opportunities and Global Hotspots. Daniel Christman explains the global financial crisis and its effects in all areas of the world. By focusing on America's key trading partners, he shows businesses and industries how to invest in parts of the world that are doing well despite the global slowdown. His tour of the world takes audiences through the friendly nations, the unfriendly nations, and the ones that cannot be ignored by American investors. From the Middle East, to Latin America, to Southeast Asia, and Africa, Christman gets into the governmental, economic, and cultural hurdles that must be navigated by American industry in order to take advantage of the favorable opportunities presented by the global crisis.

China: The Central Front in Economic Development. The importance of China on the global economic scene is unquestioned, but the business environment in the planet's fastest-growing economy is fraught with pitfalls. Christman takes audiences through the policies that make China unique. He explains true nature of the protected Chinese industries such as bio-medical, steel, and automotives. He even breaks down the differences between the provinces, explaining which are most conducive for US industry and which will be in the future.
