ONLINE 'NDA STORE' GIVES MEMBERS AND PUBLIC ACCESS TO VALUABLE DEMOLITION MATERIALS, APPAREL, AND GIFTS

The newly re-designed 'NDA Store' on the National Demolition Association's website offers essential industry documents, such as the NDA Safety Manual, as well as official NDA apparel and gift items to Association members as well as to industry professionals and the public.

DOYLESTOWN, PA, JANUARY 18, 2010 – The online “NDA Store,” a service of the National Demolition Association, gives demolition and construction professionals and the general public access to essential industry materials, as well as to official NDA gifts and apparel. Entry to the NDA Store is found on the Association homepage at www.demolitionassociation.com.

The NDA Store features three portals: one for Safety Items, one for NDA Apparel, and another for NDA Gifts. Among the documents available in the “Safety Items” section is the NDA Safety Manual, viewed globally as the premier source for best practices in the demolition industry. Also available is the NDA Hazardous Communications Program bound edition, which includes all pertinent MSDS needed at demolition sites.

“Documents like these are invaluable to running a safe and secure demolition project,” explained Michael R. Taylor, CAE, Executive Director of the NDA. “We decided as a service to the industry to make them available to companies other than NDA members.”

Also offered for sale in the NDA Store is the full series of Demolition Safety Talks and the Association's lead-in-construction safety training program, available in both printed and CD formats.

Members and non-members alike can purchase official NDA apparel, which includes t-shirts and sweat shirts. The gift section offers NDA caps, watches, and other gift items.

For more information on the NDA Store, go to www.demolitionassociation.com or contact the Association at info@demolitionassociation.com or by calling 800-541-2412.
